Independent Power Producer
Run of River Hydro Power:

What does it mean for the Northwest?

A startling amount of construction is proposed in remote valleys along BC's coast, for run-of-river 'green' power. It's happening quickly and without much public involvement. Run-of-river power can be sustainable however, citizens need to be informed and involved.

This information session will describe the issues and potential solutions, and allow plenty of time for questions and discussion.

Thurs Oct. 16th @ Kiva Sports Café
Northwest Community College
Presentation from 7:00 to 7:30
Questions/Discussion 7:30 – 8:30

Sponsored by Northwest Watch and Watershed Watch Salmon Society
